

Mental Health Graduate Nurse Program Fact Sheet & FAQs

Mental Health nursing is a challenging area of nursing and requires a combination of clinical and interpersonal skills to promote an individual's wellbeing and recovery. Mental Health nurses work in a variety of settings, including acute inpatient units (Adult and Aged), rehabilitation services, community teams (Adult and Aged), Youth services and the Emergency Department.

Professional Development

All new Graduate Nurses will complete an orientation program incorporating all essential training and recovery training. Graduate Nurses are supported in their development with monthly study days, covering a range of mental health topics and regular clinical supervision.

Clinical Rotations

All Mental Health Graduate Nurses complete 3 core rotations.

Core rotations:

- Acute Adult Inpatient Unit
- Acute Aged Inpatient Unit
- Community Care Units (CCU is located offsite in Spray St Frankston)

Support

Graduates are supported throughout their 12 month Graduate Program by a dedicated Graduate Program Co-ordinator and receive Clinical Supervision throughout this time and have the option to continue Clinical Supervision after the completion of the program. After completing 12 months Graduates are employed for a further 12 months while they complete their studies.

Post-Graduate Study

Mental Health Graduates must enrol in the Graduate Diploma of Nursing (Mental Health) at Monash University and are eligible to apply for Advance Standing in the Masters of Nursing (Mental Health) on completion of all clinical placement time, and the objectives and assessments within their Clinical Portfolio.

The remaining credit points are completed through coursework with Monash University. The Graduate Diploma must be completed within 2 years of commencing the graduate year.
